

UNIT 25 REVIEW TEST LISTENING SCRIPT

Speaker: Are you a student looking for a job? Are you a professional who wants to change your career? It is important to know yourself before you decide to find a new career. If you take some time to think about you, then you will be more likely to find the right career.

So, what do you need to know about yourself? You need to learn about your own interests and skills, and you need to consider the life that you want.

First, interests. What do you like to do? Write these things down. Then, ask yourself: Is there something common between your interests? For example, you like starting projects and managing teams. Maybe starting a business is best for you.

Second, skills. What are you good at? Maybe you enjoy writing or fixing things. Know your skills so you can continue to improve them when preparing for a new career.

Last, ask yourself: what kind of life do I want? You may intend to become a lawyer, but expect to work very long hours to make all that money. Or maybe you want to be a professor—then plan on studying for a long time, but you probably won't make as much money as a lawyer. Choose a career path to match the life you want.

Think about these three ideas to get started on choosing your career.
