

UNIT 6 REVIEW TEST LISTENING SCRIPT

Sal: Hey, Andrea. Are you coming to my party Saturday night?

Andrea: What?! I didn't hear about that. You're having a party?

Sal: Yea, for my birthday. You should come.

Andrea: OK, sure. I'm busy Friday, but I'm free Saturday. Where is the party?

Sal: It's at my place. My apartment is on West 20th Street, just next to Baron's Restaurant.

Andrea: OK, I think I know it. I live right near there on West 24th Street. My building is next to that modern hotel across from the subway station. Anyway, what's your apartment number?

Sal: It's apartment 27 on the eighth, I'm sorry, on the seventh floor. There is an elevator on the first floor to the left of the entrance. You can take it up to my apartment.

Andrea: Got it. And is your birthday on Saturday, too?

Sal: Actually my birthday is Thursday, but I want to have the party on the weekend. It's easier that way.

Andrea: It is. And what time does it start?

Sal: Come anytime after 8 p.m. And don't bring any gifts or anything like that. I have everything I need.

Andrea: Everything? Your apartment is huge, huh?

Sal: Not really. I just don't want anything because it won't fit in my apartment. That's the problem with living in this city—there's no space!

Andrea: I agree with you there. Anyway, I'm late for a meeting at my office on 15th Street. It's far from here. I have to go. See you Friday!

Sal: No, Saturday.

Andrea: Right. See you Saturday.

Sal: See you then, Andrea.
