READINGPART 3*Read the article. Then choose the correct answers.

The leatherback turtle is the largest sea turtle in the world. They spend most of their time in the water, but come to land to have their babies. Scientists are following them and know that they can swim very long distances; the furthest known journey is 20,000 kilometers. They swim down very deep in the ocean for food; actually whales are the only other sea animal that can swim deeper than these turtles.

The bad news is that this species is in danger of becoming extinct. Scientists say their numbers are going down faster and faster. There are many reasons for this, but one of the saddest is that the turtles are eating our 'used' plastic bags in the oceans because they think they are jellyfish—and this can kill them.

These are the worst times for the leatherback turtle, but some countries are now trying to make life safer and better for these very old sea animals. The world recognizes the danger the turtles are in, and many people are doing their best to make the oceans and beaches cleaner for this fascinating species.
