Henri Matisse was a famous artist. He was born in Le Cateau-Cambr sis, France in 1869. When he was eighteen, he went to Paris to become a lawyer. Two years later, in 1889, his mother gave him art supplies when he was sick. He really liked art and made lots of paintings. Matisse stopped his work as a lawyer. He went to Paris to study art. He painted wonderful pictures of nature and people.

Matisse became famous very quickly. In 1900, he showed his art at many popular galleries and museums throughout Europe. He met and became friends with other well-known artists such as Pablo Picasso and Camille Pissaro. He learned a lot from these artists, and they helped him make new kinds of art. He made many different types of art until he died in 1954.

Today, many people know Matisse's art because of its striking, bright colors. His art is famous, and you can find it in museums all over the world.
