I rarely have problems making decisions, but this time I'm really having a hard time. I can't decide which job to take – the one at Epicenter Group or the one at Agicor Direct. I need to consider both options (1) _____. This is an important decision.

Epicenter is a (2) _____ company. They're so large that they have lots of offices all over the world.

I think a job at Agicor might be (3) _____. Epicenter is a well-established company, but Agicor is pretty new. If the company fails, I'll lose my job.

There's one big disadvantage to the job with Epicenter. The office is far away, so it would be a (4) _____ distance to travel every day.

But Epicenter sells things that are (5) _____ to everyone. Its products are very practical.

Salespeople at Agicor (6) _____ sell their products in person. They do about 90 percent of their sales this way.

The interviewer from Agicor was really (7) _____ and friendly. He was easy to talk to, and I liked him a lot.

I think I could get along really (8) _____ with the people at Agicor. Everyone there is great.
