READINGPART 3*Read the passage about a robbery at the Continental Carlton Hotel. Then choose the correct answers.

The Continental Carlton Hotel, located in the south of France, was the location of one the largest robberies in history. On a summer morning in 2013, one man entered the hotel and left minutes later with more than 136 million dollars' worth of jewelry.

It was a normal morning at the Continental Carlton on July 28, 2013: Hotel guests were getting ready to check out while staff were preparing for the day's events. Then, at around 11:30 a.m., a thief entered an office on the first floor of the hotel. A few security guards and hotel employees were sitting in the room at the time when a man carrying a gun entered and threatened them. He picked up a bag with jewelry inside and exited the hotel within minutes of arriving. Witnesses said that the man was wearing a baseball cap and a scarf, but the police never caught the robber. They think the crime could be related to a similar robbery at an airport in Brussels, Belgium, a few months earlier.

Many questions surround this incident: How could someone know exactly where the jewelry was located? With such expensive jewelry in the hotel, why weren't security guards carrying guns? The police have not arrested anyone for the crime, but some people have a simple answer to these questions: The thief was not alone and hotel employees were likely helping him plan the robbery.
