PART 3

Read the passage about Bikram Choudhury. Then choose the correct answers.

Bikram Choudhury was born in India in 1946 and began to practice yoga when he was four. He practiced about five hours every day at college with his teacher. When he was thirteen, he won the National India Yoga Championship. For the next three years, he remained the winner and retired as the All-India National Yoga Champion.

Bikram hurt his knee during a weight-lifting accident when he was seventeen. Doctors told him he would never walk again. Bikram refused to believe the news and was positive that his teacher could help heal his injury through yoga. Six months later, Bikram's knee had dramatically recovered. From this experience, he created a specific style of yoga for health: Bikram Yoga.

Bikram Yoga started in India and became popular in countries all over the world. This style of yoga provides incredible healing power to the body and mind. Since the 1970s, Bikram has written several books, opened international schools, and trained other instructors. He considers himself one of the most respected modern yoga teachers.
