

UNIT 23 REVIEW TEST LISTENING SCRIPT

Diana: So, Rita and Phil, how did you two first meet?

Rita: Well, Diana, it's quite a funny story actually. One day my friend invited me to her housewarming party. I wasn't going to go at first, because I was busy with work. But my client canceled his appointment, so I was able to finish work early. So, I decided to drop by.

When I arrived there was one guy standing alone near the door. He looked nervous and alone so I went over to say hello. He told me his name was Phil, we had a short chat and that was it.

The next day, which was a Saturday I went to watch a movie in the theater. I always like to watch a movie on a Saturday afternoon, and usually I would go alone. I sat down in the seat, and who was next to me? Phil!

Diana: Wow! What movie was it?

Phil: It was an old one, Casablanca. We found out that we both loved classic movies, so we went out for a dinner and a drink afterwards, and talked about our favorite movies all through the evening! The funny thing is, I almost didn't watch that movie. I was planning to watch another film in a different theater near my apartment, but they had sold out of tickets.

Rita: I think when we first met at the party we didn't really have much fun, because neither of us enjoy noisy parties very much, but this time, meeting in a quiet restaurant, we had a really nice time together. And after that, we started dating and the rest is history.

Diana: So if they hadn't sold out of tickets in your local theater, Phil, you guys wouldn't be together now, right?

Phil: Haha, I guess not. But also don't forget about Rita's client. If he hadn't canceled on Friday, she wouldn't have been able to go to the party, and so I wouldn't have met her in the first place. So we should thank that client as well.

Diana: Yes, you should send him an email to say thanks. Haha.

Rita: Well, actually, he was also invited to our wedding!
