

UNIT 27 REVIEW TEST LISTENING SCRIPT

Julie: Marco!

Marco: Hey, Julie. What's going on?

Julie: Ehh, I'm just getting back from an interview I had this morning.

Marco: Oh, that's right. How'd it go?

Julie: Ehh, not too bad. I'm exhausted though. It was two hours of non-stop questions!

Marco: Yea, that's a long time for a first interview, but I guess it's pretty normal nowadays. Did they ask you all the regular questions?

Julie: Of course. They asked me how I had heard about the job and why I wanted to work for the company, you know, those things. Then they asked me about ...

Marco: Wait. What did you tell them about how you found the job? Did you tell them that Trisha saw the job in her job search and sent you the information and that you had never heard of the company before?

Julie: Very funny. I told them I had found it online. And then they asked why I wanted to work there, and so I highlighted all the construction projects that they had done throughout the city and how their buildings' design was something I knew quite a lot about. I made it clear that I didn't just apply for a job that my friend suggested.

Marco: Ha, OK. Did they ask you any interesting questions?

Julie: Well, they asked if I had any interest in traveling for work.

Marco: And you told them yes, right?

Julie: Of course! I highlighted that I don't have children or any dependents, and that I could go anywhere.

Marco: Nice.

Julie: They also asked me some "stress" questions I think, which came in the second hour of the interview.

Marco: Oh yea, like what?

Julie: Well, they asked me where different things—like my computer, cell phone charger, you know, things like that—were in my home. Then they asked whether I had cleaned my apartment recently.

Marco: And how did you react?

Julie: I told them the truth—that my computer was on my desk and that I couldn't remember where my charger was, and that I cleaned the apartment over the weekend.

Marco: That last one is a lie!

Julie: Yea, well, I didn't want them to think I was dirty.

Marco: Well done. It sounds like you handled the stress well, and I'm sure they recognized that.

Julie: I hope so, too. It seems like a cool place to work.
