Dear Seema,

Well, it's time for Eric and I to decide for sure where we want to go on our vacation this year. It's getting kind of late. Remember when you said to me that we (1) should got / should've get / should've already gotten tickets? Well, we (2) should / should of / should have. We need to decide where we're going tonight. Our travel agent says we (3) shouldn't waited / should have waited / shouldn't have waited this long, and that we need to buy plane tickets before the prices start to really go up for the summer.

What (4) we should have / should we had / should we have spent less time on? I guess we ought (5) have / a have / to have spent less time researching the different places, but it was so much fun! Also, we (6) could / can have / could have asked our friends for their recommendations, but we never got around to it. In addition, Eric and I have very different ideas about where we want to go. Eric wants to visit England, while I want to go to Egypt. We (7) ought to came / ought have come / ought to have come to an agreement by now. Perhaps we could go to England this summer and then to Egypt next winter. What do you think?

Jane
