READINGPART 3*Read the article. Then choose the correct answers.

Sir Ranulph Fiennes is perhaps the most successful and famous explorer and adventurer alive today. Fiennes was born in Windsor, England in 1944. His father, a Lieutenant-Colonel in the British Army, was killed in the Second World War six months before he was born. After the war, his mother moved the family to South Africa. After returning to England, he was educated at Eton College and then joined the army.

One of Fiennes's first major adventures was the Transglobe Expedition which took place between 1979 and 1982. With two of his fellow British Army officers, he traveled around the globe "vertically" (on its north-south axis) using only land transportation. This trip included crossing both the North and South Poles.

In 2003, Fiennes completed seven marathons on seven different continents in seven days! This was followed by a successful climb to the summit of Mount Everest in 2009. Making him the first person to have crossed both the North and South Poles and have climbed Everest.

Fiennes was made an "Officer of the Order of the British Empire in 1993" in recognition of his endeavor and his work for charity. His various adventures and expeditions have raised around 18 million dollars for various charities. Even now, at an age when most people would be thinking about retirement, he is still planning new expeditions and inspiring a whole younger generation of explorers and adventurers, such as Bear Grylls.
