READING*PART 3*Read the article. Then choose the correct answers.*Fast or Slow Food?

Fast food, or junk food, started in America in the 1950s, and continues to grow rapidly in the developing world. It satisfies our need to eat “on the go” or “on the run,” even though most of us are aware that eating fast food has dangerous consequences on our health and to the environment. But in our hectic, modern lives we rarely give ourselves the time to stop and think about where our food comes from, or how our food choices affect the world around us.

It is not surprising or difficult to understand how “slow food” came into being as a response to fast food. Slow food started in Italy in the 1980s, and it is about finding pleasure in a more traditional way of life—giving space to eating natural products, following traditional cooking techniques, and respecting the environment. Over the past 30 years, millions of concerned citizens, from 150 different countries have become members of slow food: chefs, farmers, activists, academics and producers—all with a passion for food and for preventing the disappearance of local cultures and traditions. Slow food is based on these three main principles—Good, Clean, and Fair. Good, meaning that food is local, seasonal, and satisfies the senses; clean, meaning the production does not harm the environment, animal welfare, or human health; fair, meaning good conditions and pay for producers, and reasonable prices.

Slow food, whose philosophy is treating the earth and its people well, is facing strong resistance entering into the fast food world. Even though many people are in favor of it, there are powerful corporate and government forces that enable industrial agriculture to continue, allowing it to be the basis for, and the continuation of the production of cheap foods and food-like substances.

  - B A large percentage of the population are too busy to change their habits.
  - C The most realistic way to change the world is to think about eating.
- 3 Based on the passage which choice best describes the difference between fast and slow food?
  - A Fast food is not as popular as slow food but it is quicker to prepare.
  - B Fast food is more expensive to produce than slow food.
  - C Fast food is a convenient choice and slow food is a healthy choice.
