How to practise new grammar and vocabulary

PRACTISE

Practising new language in an interactive environment

- interactive online exercises
- instant feedback for students
- automated scoring and reporting
- checking students' performance online
- tailoring the next lesson to target students' weak areas

There are several ways to assign your students interactive online exercises to practise new grammar or vocabulary.

Assigning exercises using online surveys

- You can create online exercises by using online surveys to get feedback from your students. You can assign different types of questions such as short answers, drop-down lists, checkboxes, etc.
- You can assign surveys by sharing the link with your students.

Assigning exercises using WordWall

- You can also use WordWall to create interactive exercises.
- To use WordWall, you need to create a teacher's account and choose the type of interactive task you would like to create.
- Activities made in WordWall can be shared with students by posting the link in the chat window during the online lesson.
- Students don't need to create accounts, but you should remind them to write their names when prompted.

Alternatively...

If you are using Zoom for synchronous online learning, you can practise new grammar and vocabulary in the Zoom chat window.

- During the online lesson, share a gapped sentence in the Zoom chat window and ask students to fill in the gaps with the necessary vocabulary or grammar forms and share it back with the whole class or personally with you.
- Share the multiple choice task on the Zoom whiteboard and ask students to write the letter of the answer in the chat.
- To practise new vocabulary, say the definition of a word and ask students to write the word that matches the definition in the chat.
- You can save the chat to review and grade students' answers and provide feedback during the next lesson.
